THEATRE AND THE FIRST WORLD WAR

After Tipperary: Theatrical Entertainment and the First World War in Richmond aims to re-assess the impact of the war on the Home Front by examining the theatrical scene in the local area.

You can get involved in this project in the following ways:

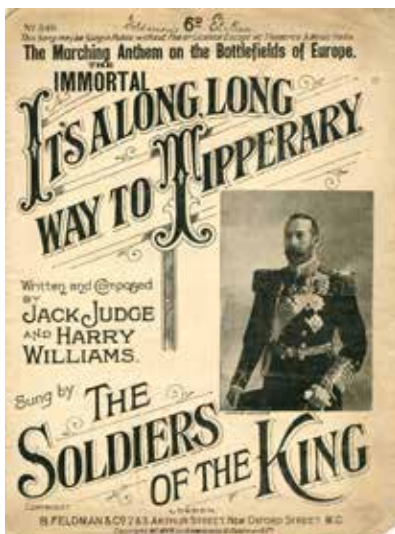

FREE Education Packs

This cross curricular Education Pack teaches KS2 pupils about First World war culture and supports them to question the way we view the home front between 1914 and 1918.

Activities are aimed at KS2 pupils , though some activities may be modified for use with KS1 classes.

To request an education pack please contact artseducation@richmond.gov.uk.

FREE Outreach Workshops

November 2016

We are offering FREE immersive theatre workshops for local schools.

If you and your class would like to explore theatrical entertainments in the Borough during the First World War further, please contact artseducation@richmond.gov.uk.

Arts Award Object Box FREE Pilot workshops

As part of our 'From the Outside In' art and science project with Octagon Club and Transitions Art Group (our art clubs for children and young people with learning disabilities and special educational needs) we are creating an Arts Award Object box.

This interactive box will be used to deliver Discover Arts Award and be loaned out to schools to teach about science and art

The Arts Award object box will :

- Include sensory objects, art activities and elements which encourage children and young people to experience art and science through hands on learning.
- Include science objects which are relevant to the project and will help children and young people discover and learn.
- Link directly to the Discover Arts Award.
- Link to the Science and Art National Curriculum
- Include a log book / paper resource which links to the Discover Arts Award
- Be tailored to a variety of learning styles and abilities (specifically for SEN groups).

We are looking for schools to get involved in piloting this project. We have a number of FREE Workshops and CPD's that we can offer in Richmond and Hounslow. For further information please contact artseducation@richmond.gov.uk
